PEOPLE: Who are the FIVE the people who can answer my questions and address my concerns? These are people who are paid to help me, who volunteer to help me, or who I can ask to help me. I can find these people on campus websites, through admissions offices, academic offices, high school alumni groups, campus clubs, organizations, student support services, family, friends, and via social networks.

- Person #1 _____
- Person #2 _____
- Person #3 _____
- Person #4 _____
- Person #5 _____

PLACES: Where are the THREE places on campus where I can find connections, support, and answers? I'll look for places where people are living the life I want to live on campus. I'll look in places where people like me learn, lead, live, work, sweat, play, and pray. I'll use my five people, campus resources, and online resources to guide me to the right places on campus.

- Place #1 _____
- Place #2 _____
- Place #3 _____

PATIENCE: For each question or concern, I need to know how long it will take for me to find answers. I'll ask the people in my places the following three questions to help me create a realistic timeline so I can be patient and not panic.

- How long will it take me to find answers? _____
- What can I do to speed up the process? _____
- Anyone else or any additional resources that can help me? _____
